Debbie James

Helpful summary of value of street trees

Patrick Barthram sums up the wealth of research around the value of street and urban trees. A useful summary for those who don't recognise their economic value for a place as well as their social value.

Sue James

Well researched article.

Patrick Barthram first wrote about urban trees in an article called 'Charmus Mammone' following the London Assembly's investigation into street trees in 2007. This is a welcome return to the subject and he has drawn on informed sources, many of who belong to the Trees and Design Action Group. It is able to provide evidence based research.
